Milestones

May 1, 2002 By Suzy Martin

Korrin Krause, a 16-year-old bagger fired by a Wisconsin IGA when the grocery store learned she had HIV, won a $90,000 settlement...In February, Anthony Fauci, MD, 16-year head of federal AIDS research, was notably not named by Bush as director of the National Institutes of Health. Fauci's refusal to publicly oppose abortion rights or fetal-tissue research reportedly scuttled the nomination...Departing Surgeon General David Satcher, the Clinton appointee who clashed with Bush's abstinence-only agenda, accepted a position at Morehouse School of Medicine, where he will focus on people of color...The Elizabeth Glaser Pediatric AIDS Foundation elected David Kessler, MD, Clinton's controversial FDA commish, as board chair...The Spokane AIDS Network's ED, Anne Stuyvesant, stepped down, saying, "I'm not burned out, just a little singed."
