HIV Politics

November 22, 2011 By Oriol R. Gutierrez Jr.

POZ cover boy Andrew Sullivan has posted another HIV-related video in his “Ask Me Anything” series on his blog, The Daily Dish. These videos give him an opportunity to personally respond to reader inquiries.

Previous HIV-related videos asked him "When did you find out you had HIV?“ and ”Other than HIV drugs, what do you credit with your longevity with the virus?"

In his current video, he’s asked: “How has your HIV status influenced your politics?”

He says not much, with two big exceptions--a deeper understanding of both the need for health care reform and the repeal of the HIV travel ban.

He goes on to say: “What HIV has taught me spiritually, emotionally, psychologically, far exceeds its impact on my political thinking.” Indeed.
