

Bi'er Beware

April 1, 2003 By Suzy Martin

Dykes and bi-girls skip the latex more often than gay men, said Western Kentucky University researchers who surveyed 927 young gays, bis and lesbians. AC/DC gals were less likely than gays to use condoms with guys—even for anal sex with switch-hittin' dudes—and reported taking more risks, such as using drugs, than homos of either sex. The postscript for preventionistas? Don't let these adventuresses fall through the cracks.
