AHF Gives $1M in HIV Meds to Florida ADAP Wait List

January 5, 2011

The AIDS Healthcare Foundation (AHF) will give $1 million in free antiretroviral drugs to Florida's AIDS Drug Assistance Program (ADAP) for wait list patients and patients who have been disenrolled from the program, according to an AHF statement. Patients will be given a five-day supply of medication until they are able to enroll into private drug company patient assistance programs to receive refills. More than 2,000 people are on the ADAP wait list in Florida, which has the third highest population nationwide of people living with HIV/AIDS.
