

HIV-Positive Sergeant May Have Knowingly Exposed “Swingers” in Kansas

September 1, 2010

An HIV-positive Air Force sergeant stationed at McConnell Air Force Base in Kansas was arrested after military officials learned he might have knowingly exposed people at “swinger events” to the virus, The Wichita Eagle reports. A court document shows the sergeant attended 21 swinger parties from January 2009 to July 2010. Health officials expect this is the largest case of HIV exposure in Sedgwick County, which has 729 people living with HIV. County health officials say they might help people track down sexual partners for notification purposes if needed.
