ADAP Waiting Lists Eliminated for First Time Since 2008

December 2, 2013

There are currently no people on any AIDS Drug Assistance Program (ADAP) waiting lists in the United States, according to a statement by the National Alliance of State & Territorial AIDS Directors (NASTAD). People have been on ADAP waiting lists across the country since January 2008. The last state to have a list was South Dakota. Alabama and Idaho eliminated their lists in early November. NASTAD reminds advocates that ongoing federal budget negotiations could lead to states reinstituting waiting lists.
