The Art of Making Love

Design your own condoms!

April 1, 2015 By Trent Straube

Thanks to Graphic Armor, condom use just got more creative. The company offers latex condoms and wrappers with customized designs printed right on the rubbers and packages. You simply upload images, slogans and designs on GraphicArmor.com, and then your personalized prophylactics will be ready for business.

A best-seller is the Star Wars–themed “I will not be your father” condom. “Offering choices and even personalized packaging with logos or humor helps to increase condom usage,” says Adam Glickman, co-owner and managing partner. He should know—nearly 25 years ago he founded Condomania, the country’s first condom store.

Graphic Armor condoms are FDA-approved, and the company promises the nontoxic printing will not rub off in normal use. Prices range from three bucks per condom to 39 cents, depending on the quantity. Which leaves one question: How will you make your mark?
