

'Creative and Novel Ideas in HIV Research' Inaugural Grants

July 28, 2010

Ten recipients have been awarded the inaugural “Creative and Novel Ideas in HIV Research” grants. The grants are funded in partnership with the International AIDS Society (IAS), the U.S. National Institutes of Health and the Centers for AIDS Research, according to an IAS statement. Totaling $3.4 million, the grants will fund research projects for up to two years that advance scientific understanding of HIV, including new approaches to HIV prevention and long-term survival with HIV.
