

AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin Gets $1M Gift

November 20, 2013

Will Radler, a retired landscape architect, donated $1 million to the AIDS Resource Center of Wisconsin (ARCW), the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reports. The gift to ARCW was made through the Greater Milwaukee Foundation. The donation is the largest single gift ever to benefit people with HIV in Wisconsin. ARCW can now increase its psychiatric services for three years. Radler, whose mother fought depression, made his fortune as an amateur botanist who developed one of the best-selling roses of all time.
