WATCH: Videos by Black Transgender Women Living With HIV in the South

April 4, 2016

The Transgender Law Center and its Positively Trans (T+) project have been offering a digital storytelling workshop with the goal of telling the stories of transgender people living with and impacted by HIV.

Five of the videos premiered last week at a launch event in Atlanta and are now viewable online. They feature five black transgender women from the South.

The videos are a companion piece to a Positively Trans survey about the lives of transgender people living with HIV, according to a Transgender Law Center press release. Initial findings from the survey were compiled in a report focused on advocacy and health care.

The videos were created in a workshop facilitated by the Story Center and with support by the Elton John AIDS Foundation and Levi Strauss Foundation.

For more on the survey findings, read the POZ news item "What the Positively Trans Survey Results Teach Us."

Here are the other four videos:

© 2026 Smart + Strong All Rights Reserved.