The Well Project is Honored to Welcome Our New Deputy Director, Grissel Granados

The Well Project is honored to announce that Grissel Granados has joined our team as Deputy Director! Grissel brings with her more than a decade of experience managing HIV programming in a health care setting, in addition to her life-long commitment to advocacy, and a master's degree in social work.

April 12, 2022 By The Well Project

This post originally appeared on and can be read in its entirety at The Well Project.

The Well Project is honored to announce that Grissel Granados has joined our team as Deputy Director! Grissel brings with her more than a decade of experience managing HIV programming in a health care setting, in addition to her life-long commitment to advocacy, and a master's degree in social work.

"We are thrilled that Grissel is joining our staff," said Krista Martel, The Well Project's Executive Director. "Grissel's passion and expertise are the perfect fit for our leadership team. She will play a vital role in the continued growth and expansion of The Well Project's programming and offerings."

Grissel has participated in community planning at a local and national level, including the Los Angeles County Commission on HIV as well as the Presidential Advisory Council on HIV/AIDS (PACHA). She has been living with HIV since birth and co-directed and co-produced the 2015 documentary We're Still Here, which tells the stories of the first generation of people born with HIV in the 1980s and 1990s who are now adults. Grissel believes that a gender and racial justice approach is the only way to make an impact on the HIV epidemic. Continue reading…

The Well Project is a non-profit organization whose mission is to change the course of the HIV/AIDS pandemic through a unique and comprehensive focus on women and girls. Visit their website, https://www.thewellproject.org/, to access fact sheets (English and Spanish), blogs, and advocacy tools, and to join a global community of women living with HIV.

© 2026 Smart + Strong All Rights Reserved.