A Month of Superheroes: Georgia Arnold/MTV Staying Alive

August 25, 2015 By Shawn Decker

Georgia, Gwenn and me in 2010

Georgia Arnold is the Executive Director of the MTV Staying Alive Foundation, which fights HIV globally by funding youth-led programs. Over the last few years I've been fortunate to see what they can accomplish firsthand, since I'm on the SAF Board. (Full disclosure- I help good people help good people!)

Now, Georgia would be quick to say the grantees who put in the grassroots work in their communities are the heroes. And, well, who could argue with her? Meet the heroes of Staying Alive that protect their communities with innovative HIV education efforts tailored to their own communities needs.

The team that keeps things moving at Staying Alive are incredible. And the tireless efforts of Georgia are an integral part of what makes the foundation so effective. I'm proud to call Georgia a hero in the fight against HIV, but most importantly I'm honored to call her a friend, too.

Keep up with Georgia's travels and MTV Staying Alive by joining their email list. (They won't bombard you, about one email a month)

Positively Yours,
Shawn

My blog post about how I learned about the MTV Staying Alive Foundation, from March 2010.

© 2026 Smart + Strong All Rights Reserved.