The Cure Baby, The Berlin Patient, And A Cure For The Rest Of Us

March 11, 2013 By Peter Staley

I did a radio interview with the CBC last week, Canada's public radio station, discussing the news about the "cured" baby with HIV. They also interviewed Timothy Brown, the so-called "Berlin Patient," and the first and only adult that's been cured. How will these "cures" affect those of us that have been living with HIV for months or years? When will we see a cure? My answers to these and other questions start at the 5:50 mark, but listen to Tim's interview first.
