Condón Libre

February 15, 2009 By David Capogna

CVS grossed $76 billion last year; you would think they should be giving out free condoms instead of locking them away!

WTF was CVS thinking when they lock up the condoms in Latino and black communities? They claim that the stores were trying to prevent shoplifting. (NY1 reports a protest by Cure CVS Now this weekend in the Bronx.) First of all, CVS should be giving condoms away for free in the close to 7,000 stores which the company operate. Especially right now, since birth control and preventative HIV measures have been cut from the stimulus bill...argh, if I hear pork barrel again, I'm going to scream! Locking condoms away is teetering on a criminal offense, I would have to say. Who can you trust these days Wall Street, the Big 3, Bernie Madoff??? Ugh...CVS is my pharmacy (but not for long,) after my stumbled across cureCVSnow.org. And for all you big cities dwellers, PharmaCare's parent company is you-know-who! Mom, I know you're reading this, take all of your and dad's prescriptions to the 24 Hour RiteAid, right across the street from the CVS. Same driving time, no worries, just do it! CVS is the country's largest drugstore chain and provides more prescriptions than anyone, I would suggest less successful rivals like Walgreens, RiteAid or any about other local or "mom & pop" pharmacy in your area. Another case of "absolute power corrupts absolutely."

Dplus

© 2026 Smart + Strong All Rights Reserved.