First Gay Marriage in Latin America

November 17, 2009 By Oriol R. Gutierrez Jr.

A judge in Argentina has ruled in favor of a gay couple granting them the right to get married, AFP reports.

The men, both of whom are HIV positive, selected December 1st, which is World AIDS Day, as their wedding date in Buenos Aires.

Having approved LGBT civil unions in 2002, Buenos Aires has proven to be one of the most LGBT-friendly cities in Latin America.

“We will become husband and husband,” said Alejandro Freyre, 39, and Jose Maria Di Bello, 41.
