Florida Facing ADAP Funding Gap

January 22, 2011 By Shawn Decker

Florida's AIDS Drugs Assistance Program is facing a $14 million budget gap- more like canyon- and HIV/AIDS activists, lawmakers and drug companies are trying to find a solution that tides over state residents until the new fiscal year begins on April 1. To read the entire story, click here.

AIDSmeds.com has compiled a list of drug companies that are offering help to those who are having trouble making ends meet. Drug companies come under a lot of fire, but I'm glad to see that they are recognizing the severity of waiting lists and the health insurance game of Twister that many of us with HIV play.

Positively Yours,
Shawn
