

Honoring Stephen Gendin at the AIDS Memorial Grove

July 19, 2016 By Shawn Decker

(7-21-16 UPDATE: The fundraising goal has been met! Woohoo! -SD)

Today marks 16 years since Stephen Gendin passed away. He was instrumental in the creation and direction of POZ Magazine, an incredible asset to the AIDS community and a tireless activist. But to me, he was the coolest guy in the POZ office (always a tough crown to achieve)—with his dyed hair, accompanied by his dog, Zoom, whose tail color matched Stephen's mane.

Check out POZ's tribute to Stephen here: <https://www.poz.com/magazine/poz-october-2000>

In recent years, Bill Cole has been studying Stephen's legacy and introducing his work to a new generation. Bill has also started a fundraising effort to have Stephen's name included at the AIDS Memorial Grove. We have until August 1st to meet the goal of \$1,100. \(The good news? It's already raised over \$800!\)

Stephen's support of my writing—and my own humorous take on activism—meant so much in those early days of wearing my HIV status on my sleeve. When I started doing the Labtest Contest in 1997, he loved the idea. He even won once, taking home the grand prize of an autographed photo of me and Danny Bonaduce. (Autographed by me.) Stephen was also the first person to really bend my ear on the need to consider HIV meds—back then I was not ready... he recognized that, but let me know how he felt about my decision, too.

I hop you'll help me get Stephen's fund over the hump, in the same way his words helped me get over mine.

Positively Yours,

Shawn
