India, Marriage and HIV

January 19, 2011 By Shawn Decker

The latest issue of Poz Magazine is out, and there's a great cover story on the stigma of having HIV in India and how married women in that country are often scapegoated and ostracized for contracting HIV from their husbands.

Doesn't make sense? Then read the article, especially if you don't understand how institutionalized and legislated homophobia greatly contributes to the spread of HIV and the unnecessary suffering of those who contract this virus.

Positively Yours,
Shawn
