iStayHealthy 4.0.2 for iPhone released today

September 4, 2014 By iStayHealthy

I released another small maintenance release of the iPhone app iStayHealthy today. This is to fix a couple of problems reported by users:

- Only one 'start medication' line is shown in the 'Charts' view in cases where users have several drugs starting on the same day/date

- Modifying an existing alert no longer duplicates the entry after saving.

Many of you might be aware of the latest version of iOS - iOS8 - being just around the corner. It comes with an exciting array of new features - not least a new tool called 'HealthKit'.
HealthKit is a toolkit allowing users to manage a whole range of medical data across their mobile devices (and Mac's). I am currently looking into how iStayHealthy may support this.
