

Merce- Original HIV Comedy Series!

July 28, 2015 By Shawn Decker

Now that 40 has sunk in, and I have recovered from my birthday festivities, I wanted to post an entry about one of my favorite new things: Merce! It's so over-the-top campy and kind-hearted, with a story that is centered around the middle-aged Merce, an HIV positive man living in New York City.

The episodes are short, funny and inspired. And I'm so happy to see a web series focused on a lead character living in today's American world with HIV. Well done, Team Merce!

For those of you who haven't checked it out yet, here's the first two episodes below.

The first episode debuted two weeks ago, and in it the title character, Merce, who is living with HIV in New York City, goes on a date...

Episode 1: MERCE "Tonight at Eight" from MerceTV on Vimeo.

In episode two, Merce has a doctor's appointment. Harboring a not-so-subtle crush on his own personal McDreamy, Merce is disappointed when his doctor suggests that he start working out.

Looking forward to seeing what adventures lie ahead for wide-eyed Merce!

Positively Yours,
Shawn
