POZARAZZI EXCLUSIVE: Magnetic couple, Shawn and Gwenn, recently visited a farm for a goat snuggling session. Seems innocent enough, right? Well, the HIV educators encountered frenzied fans where they expected docile farm animals.

"They had read my blog, the one about my 35-year diagnosis," Shawn said while being tended to by medics. "They just wanted autographs." "And to eat my hair," Gwenn chimed in while also receiving care. "Oh yeah," Shawn replied. "They didn't like my hair. I think the generous use of mousse kept them at bay." While discussing the events of the day, Shawn couldn't comprehend that he'd survived hemophilia, HIV, hepatitis B and C- only to perish at the hooves of an adorable gaggle of goats. ”I guess if there’s a way to go, that would be it, huh?"

Shawn and Gwenn are expected to make a full recovery. As well as a return to the farm. But why?

“HIV educators don’t get asked for autographs very often. I feel obligated to honor the multiple requests- they just came in so aggressively. It’s no wonder that all the big stars of the screen essentially snap, or drift silently into madness,” Shawn said as Gwenn reached over from her gurney to hold his hand.

The couple is expected to make a full recovery.
