Remember It Now Beta Trials

September 18, 2009 By Shawn Decker

I was recently contacted by Alex, who has become my most faithful blog commenter (thanks, Alex!), about passing along an offer to join their beta trial for a service that is intended to make life for positoids a lot easier. If you are interested in participating in their free trial, learn about Remember It Now by going here.

Here's a bit from the site:

"Our simple to use, personal health care management service is available online. There is no software to download, or upgrades to manage. We'll help you remember to take your medications, create a care community, get organized, provide long-distance care, and much more. Our software is designed to be simple to use and to make your life easier. We believe you should spend more time doing the things you enjoy, and less time worrying about taking medications, remembering appointments, tracking prescriptions, reordering supplies and scheduling care."

I thought it sounded like a cool thing- I was supposed to write about this offer a week ago. But, well, I forgot!

Positively Yours,
Shawn
